"The results of the views of the Gen Z students that have been discussed, that these students already understand the meaning of the current implementation of State Defense. So that the perspective and implementation that students did yesterday can be a reference for teaching lecturers about State Defense from the perspective of Gen Z. I hope that we lecturers can become role models because UPNVJ's direction regarding teaching and education, especially regarding State Defense depends on us. added the chancellor.

Technically, seven lecturers from faculty representatives took turns conveying their views on State Defense.

From the views of the five lecturers, it can be concluded that the value of State Defense is all from the small things that can be done to become the implementation of State Defense, the value of State Defense must be inherent in everyday life and the biggest challenge lies within ourselves.

Broadly speaking, lecturers have a tridharma role in constructive studies including studies that are critical to the ruling regime. Lecturers must also have measurable and accountable methods when voicing their opinions, ideas, ideas, so that they are scientifically responsible.

The values of State Defense can be internalized in human behavior and attitudes by implementing the 6 pillars, namely love for the motherland, awareness of the nation, awareness of the state, belief in Pancasila as the nation's ideology, willingness to sacrifice for the sake of the nation, having initial capabilities in State Defense so as to create a country
