"We often have discussions to discuss the design concept and sub-themes for the competition. At first we determined in advance about the sub-themes we wanted to take. Then we finally decided to take the education sub-theme. Then we also determine the design concept that we want to take, namely in the form of an infographic poster. After that, we collected some education-related data relevant to the competition theme. Then we carried out the final process, namely editing the poster, explained Fina in answer to the PR team's questions regarding their process for participating in this competition.

Fillah and Fina also shared their ups and downs during the competition. "During the process of preparing for the activity there were many ups and downs that we went through. Actually, I can lose my joy more because doing design is what I love so the process of doing it feels very enjoyable, especially when I have a partner who supports and helps during activity preparation so everything feels easier. The grief that we feel is because it's still a pandemic, this has made it difficult for us to communicate because we can't discuss it directly, "said Fina

â€œI hope that all of you can make the best of this opportunity to continue to make UPNVJ proud in various national competitions. As well as our great hope for UPN Veteran Jakarta to continue to facilitate students in various national competitions that are participated in by students so that the existing potentials continue to grow and are well channeled," closed Fillah at the end of the interview.
