Public Relations UPNVJ - In the context of implementing Independent Selection (SEMA) Wave 2, the National Development University "Veteran" Jakarta (UPNVJ) is again holding a trial of the State Defense Examination which is a requirement for implementing SEMA UPNVJ Wave 2

It was recorded that more than 3,000 participants took part in the online trials.

Even though it was carried out online, UPNVJ prepared 86 supervisors who simultaneously monitored the exam in the Merce Building, Faculty of Medicine, UPNVJ Limo Campus.

"Based on data from participants who registered, 70 percent have taken part in the second wave of this exam, so most of them already have an idea. However, for those who don't understand the process, it is recommended that they immediately print their exam participant cards after the trial process takes place," said the New Student Admissions Coordinator. UPNVJ Fajar Nugroho in a supervisory briefing on Tuesday, July 23 2024.

He also said that the aim of holding this test trial was so that participants knew the procedures and implementation rules.

"We carry out the exam online, so we have to make sure that participants can use the exam application, and know the rules during the exam," added Fajar.

Based on monitoring of today's trial implementation, there were several participants who were absent. Some admitted that they had taken the exam in the first wave, and some others had to attend other activities that could not be missed.

For participants who are unable to attend today's trial, they can take part in the follow-up period from 23 July 2024 from 12.00 WIB to 24 July 2024 at 13.00 WIB.
